Scarab Rising, Inc. is a strategic intelligence and advisory firm specializing in geopolitical risk, cognitive security, information warfare, and emerging defense technologies. We help technology companies, defense contractors, investors, and government clients assess complex security challenges, identify market opportunities, and advance innovative solutions for defense, intelligence, and commercial applications.

Our expertise combines geopolitical intelligence, cross-disciplinary research, and strategic advisory services to support technology commercialization, dual-use innovation, market entry, and strategic partnerships.

Our ideal partners and clients include AI and cybersecurity startups developing dual-use technologies; defense and intelligence contractors seeking specialized geopolitical expertise; research institutions commercializing emerging technologies; venture capital firms, accelerators, and strategic investors evaluating national security applications; and US government agencies, allied governments, and other US-approved government clients seeking specialized intelligence, security analysis, and strategic advisory capabilities.

We are particularly interested in partnerships involving cognitive security, threat intelligence, information operations, and advanced analytical capabilities.

Let's explore opportunities to jointly develop solutions, pursue government and commercial contracts, bring emerging technologies to market, and establish long-term strategic partnerships.